The Welcome Email Checklist for Online Stores

The 5 emails to send in the first 10 days after someone joins your list.

1. Before you send anything: check your signup offer

- ☐ Visitors get a real reason to join (a discount, free shipping, a quiz, a guide or early access), not just “Join our newsletter.”
- ☐ The signup form works on a phone and is easy to close.
- ☐ The form asks for as little as possible (email, or first name and email).
- ☐ It says what subscribers will receive and links to your privacy policy.
- ☐ Unsubscribing is easy, and you can show when and how each person signed up.

2. The five welcome emails

Email 1 Right away	Deliver what you promised Send the discount code, guide or offer straight away. Say what to expect next. One clear button.	☐ Done
Email 2 Day 2	Introduce your store Share who you are and your bestsellers. Ask a question or invite a reply.	☐ Done
Email 3 Day 4	Build trust Show proof: reviews, customer photos or a useful tip about your products.	☐ Done
Email 4 Day 7	Help them choose Recommend products and answer common doubts such as shipping, returns or sizing.	☐ Done
Email 5 Day 10	Ask for the first order Make a direct offer with proof and one clear button to buy.	☐ Done

3. Check every email before it goes live

- ☐ It has one clear call to action.
- ☐ The first email arrives immediately, and the discount code or file works.
- ☐ Subscribers get more than one email, not a single message followed by silence.
- ☐ The sequence stops once someone buys, so customers don’t keep getting “welcome” emails.
- ☐ You have sent a test signup to your own email address and checked every email.

4. Don’t forget the abandoned-cart emails

Welcome emails are for new subscribers. Shoppers who add a product to their cart and leave need their own short sequence of 2 to 3 emails. Send the first about 2 to 4 hours later, show the exact product they left behind, and link straight back to their cart.
